Hey Kent,

This is looking really great!

I have a few questions:

1. Are we able to embed this on our website?
 2. Do you have a way to view analytics to show us how many people viewed the map on the day of the event?
 3. Last year, our map was viewed 100k times throughout the day. Will your website be able to handle this volume of traffic?
 4. Is the entire schedule on the map? Can you let us know when the map will be ready to share?
- We are eager to add to our instagram, website, and signage.

A Few Edits (screenshots attached):

1. The map looks great on mobile in Safari. On Chrome mobile, the filters don't load on the screen, you have to scroll down. Can you check this for us please?
2. Our logo on the load screen is a little squished. Can you fix this?

Thank you!

Kent... this is AWESOME!!! I am blown away.

The time slot and genre filtering are great features, and I like how the "find a pulse" button ties into your brand. Showing your live location is also really helpful. This is going to be a game changer navigating the festival! Even my 65-year-old parents figured it out pretty easily.

I like how clean it is with just the music (no restrooms, bars, etc). I don't have any edits to the design, but I'll defer to @Sarah Carpenter if she has any feedback.

Next Steps:

- Can you do another double check of the spreadsheet to ensure all info is up to date? Let me know if there is anything you're missing or have any questions.
- Good to start filling in all the porch colors! Is there a way to indicate when a porch is hosting more than one band?
- I'd love to get this up on our website, IG linktree, and included as a QR code on day-of signage. If we could go live this week that'd be even better so people can start planning their day!

Thank you for such a stellar job! 🙌🙌

Hi Sarah,

I'm excited to tell you that the website is fully built out and live at map.pulsedapp.live!

The map shows every scheduled set location pinned across the Virginia-Highland neighborhood. Here are a few key features. Feel free to try them out on the page:

- Live mode: as sets go live on the day of the festival, pressing the "Find a Pulse" button will light up and filter the map down to only what's playing at that moment. Attendees can tap it and immediately see where the music is happening within walking distance. I set a few sets to "live" so you can see what this would look like on May 16th. The map also shows the user's live location.
- Genre + Time Filters: people can browse by genre or filter by time slot, so if someone only has an hour or wants to find a specific sound, they can plan a route without scrolling through a full schedule.
- Set Cards: clicking on a set will prompt a card pop-up where people can get directions to the band and/or view their catalog or website.
- Branding: I implemented my take of combining brand assets while distinguishing Porchfest and Pulsed as separate entities. I included the color codes as best I could (side ribbons, button and card outlines). I also include the Porchfest and Pulsed logos at the top. Tapping them will take you to the respective page.

Thank you again for giving me the opportunity to build this platform! I'm excited to see how it serves the VaHi community in a few weeks. With that being said, don't hesitate to reach out with suggestions for the page. There are still some things to tidy up before the festival, but I think this is a great working first draft.

Let me know if you would like to get coffee or call sometime next week to talk about the map and any final touches before May 16th.

Best,
Kent

Hey Kent,

Attached is a PDF with the color codes for time slots. We use Google's Montserrat for body copy. I also attached logos. Let me know if you need anything else!

Hey Sarah,

Sure thing and totally understand! Makes complete sense given the existing agreements.

One thing I'll mention: Pulsed is something I'll be actively trying to build this summer, so I'm still figuring out the business side as I go. I want to be clear that my commitment to doing this for free for the fest still stands.

With that being said, I'd love to talk through some ideas and also take you up on adding the sponsor activations, bars, restrooms, whatever else you can share. The more complete the map, the better the experience for everyone.

If you haven't had a chance to check it out yet, the map is live at map.pulsedapp.live. All the updates I make will be pushed to that domain. For now, I'm just waiting on brand assets, but I'm confident I can have the working map ready on May 1st.

Thanks, and looking forward to meeting soon!

Thanks,

Kent

Hey Kent,

If you could reply all on future threads so my team can stay in the loop that would be appreciated! Copying them in now.

I totally hear you on offsetting some of the costs. However, we have finalized bar agreements, alcohol sponsors, and other sponsors so we wouldn't be able to accommodate working with any outside businesses that didn't officially come through us.

If you want to add more to the map, we definitely can share more things (sponsor activations, bars, restrooms, etc). If it's a financial concern for your time commitment, we can talk through that more.

Thank you for checking first!

Hey Sarah,

One thing I wanted to run by you before we get any closer to the event: I've been thinking about adding a small sponsorship element. Something along the lines of 1-5 bars near the route could get a distinct pin on the map (different color, clearly separate from the band and address pins) with a short blurb and directions. The idea is to help offset some of the development costs while giving nearby bars a way to promote their presence during the fest.

Nothing that touches the band or venue experience at all, and I wouldn't approach anyone without your blessing first. I also want to be mindful of any existing bar partnerships the district already has. I'm happy to work around those completely, or even fold this in as part of something you're already doing if that makes more sense for you.

Let me know what you think.

Thanks,
Kent

Thanks for giving me the opportunity to help! Super energizing to have everyone on board. I'll stay in touch with other Sarah for branding.

I'll get to work right away, but feel free to reach out with suggestions if something comes to mind that we didn't discuss in the meeting. Here are the crucial changes I noted:

- Self-tracking and live tracking of sets
- Promotional tools for bands (links to socials)
- Porchfest branding

Excited to show you what I come up with!

Thanks

Thanks again for meeting with us today! I think this could be really cool to integrate into Porchfest.

Linking a sheet below with a band schedule plus genre and links:
PF26 Bands + Hosts Matching

@Sarah Carpenter can send you the hex codes and any other brand assets you need.

Looking forward to seeing your draft!

Hi Kent!

Thanks so much for reaching out. I'm the Director of Marketing for the Virginia Highland District Association.

So glad to hear you're a fan of Porchfest and want to get involved with your app-building talents! I'm super interested to hear more about this idea.

I'm pretty open Thursday or Friday morning to meet for coffee. Let me know what works for you!

Best,
Sarah

Hello,

I'm Kent, a senior at Emory finishing up a degree in finance and information systems. I'm building something for Atlanta music fans, specifically for the moments when you're out and trying to figure out where the best live music is happening right now.

It's called Pulsed: a real-time map that shows attendees exactly who's playing at what porch, live, on their phone. No paper map, no stale PDF. If a band runs late or cancels, attendees know immediately.

I'd love to make Va-Hi Porchfest 2026 the first event we power. The ask on your end is minimal: your band list, porch addresses, and set times. Everything else I handle, and it's completely free.

I'm Atlanta-based and would love to grab coffee or hop on a quick call this week.

Would that work? My number is listed below.

Thank you for your consideration,

James (Kent) Lemken
